

National Vulnerability Action Plan (NVAP)

NVAP Themes

The National Vulnerability Action Plan provides support to policing to deliver 7 identified key themes that have specific actions:

1. Early Intervention and Prevention

By adopting the principle of professional curiosity, potential indicators of vulnerability can be identified at an early stage, presenting an opportunity for early intervention with partners so that the risk of harm is reduced. This does not always mean referral to other statutory agencies but does mean taking a caring approach to reduce the risk of further harm. E.g. this could be as little as knowing what local and national support services are available and signposting accordingly.

2. Protecting, Supporting, Safeguarding and Managing Risk

All staff and officers to use professional curiosity and an investigative mindset to recognise and respond to vulnerability. Any one incident can have layers of complexity including domestic abuse, alcohol/drug abuse, elder abuse, child emotional abuse and neglect that can lead to other risks such as criminal exploitation, sexual exploitation and vulnerability to radicalisation. The first step is to recognise fully the extent and level of risk present in order that police and partners take effective action to manage the risk.

3. Information, Intelligence, Data Collection and Management of Information

Forces have effective processes in place to gather information and intelligence, especially multi-agency data. Officers and staff use the tools to assess risk effectively in order to consider an appropriate and proportionate response. Each force develops appropriate data and related evidence to ensure that its response to vulnerability is as effective as possible.

4. Effective Investigation and Outcomes

To ensure an effective investigation, staff and officers must engage with vulnerable people in a sensitive and supportive way; maintain an open mindset, responding to the vulnerability, rather than a stereotype. Ensuring the right supportive interventions are in place will lead to appropriate and better outcomes; this is especially important for young people defined as "need to reach" who are engaged in gangs, knife carrying etc, or victims of modern day slavery.

5. Leadership

Leadership is not rank specific! All officers and staff should recognise they are leaders and be empowered to exercise their professional judgement in determining the most appropriate response and support to vulnerable people. Leadership includes ensuring that the correct governance is in place to manage risk relating to vulnerability effectively.

6. Learning and Development

Officers and staff are supported to attain and maintain their wellbeing and the skills and knowledge that they need to recognise and respond effectively to all forms of vulnerability. The outcome will be that staff will be able to work in partnership to take a problem solving approach in addressing vulnerability.

7. Communications

Use sophisticated communication techniques to understand the needs of all internal and external audiences. Utilise information to ensure that people understand how to reduce potential risks, and our officers and staff understand what is expected of them. Vulnerability should be recognised as relating to witnesses, victims, suspects and our staff.

Defining Vulnerability

The College has adopted the THRIVE definition of vulnerability, which states that:

'A person is vulnerable if, as a result of their situation or circumstances, they are unable to take care of or protect themselves or others from harm or exploitation.'

Source: <https://www.college.police.uk/guidance/vulnerability-related-risks/introduction-vulnerability-related-risk>

The following infographic and formula underpins their approach with the definition recognising that any person could be vulnerable but it is extrinsic factors acting with intrinsic factors that can make someone suffer or be at risk of harm:

Personal factors could include protected characteristics as set out in the Equality Act 2010. <https://www.legislation.gov.uk/ukpga/2010/15/section/4>

The NPCC is working towards this definition but recognises the challenges this presents from a strategic perspective. In the development of this plan the following national policing working groups were specifically engaged as members of the NPCC Violence and Public Protection Portfolio and so should be considered in scope:

Missing, Child Protection Abuse Investigation (incl. CSA/E), Vulnerability to Radicalisation, Multi Agency Safeguarding Hubs (MASH), Domestic Abuse, Honour Based Abuse/ Forced Marriage/ Female Genital Mutilation, Stalking & Harassment, Management of Sexual Offenders and Violent Offenders (MOSOVO), Adult Sexual Offences, Adults at Risk (including Elder Abuse), Modern Day Slavery and Human Trafficking, Gangs, County Lines, Knife Crime and Sex Working & Prostitution

Perennial Issues in Policing

The College has undertaken research to obtain a rounded view of priorities for improvement in, or support to, policing over the short to medium term. The research included analysis of HMICFRS thematic and force PEEL inspections and interviews and focus groups with Chief Officers and frontline staff including constables and sergeants, in order to identify the recurring 'perennial issues' in policing where action is needed to drive improvement for the public across a range of contexts, rather than for a particular crime type or operational area of policing. This approach was aimed at identifying how the College can best work with and support policing practitioners to develop the professional skills which will enable them to respond to current, new and unforeseen challenges.

The research identified the following 10 recurring areas where improvement is required. All these areas can be considered as 'systemic' problems, requiring system wide solutions

Diagnosis of underlying system issues:

Identifying and managing risk: The need to successfully identify and protect individuals at risk of harm

Victim engagement and care: The need to effectively engage and care for victims and witnesses

Supporting vulnerable people: The need to support vulnerable individuals through the CJS

Using evidence in investigations: The need to make effective use of evidence and investigation

Collaborative working: The need to work with partners and other agencies to effectively protect the public

Crime prevention and long term problem solving: The need to focus on prevention and long term problem solving

Analytical capability: The need to understand problems and demands and their impact on policing activity

Developing the workforce: The need to support individuals to reach their potential through effective supervision and leadership

Staff wellbeing: The need to support staff wellbeing

Professional and ethical conduct: The need to scrutinise professional conduct and deliver

NVAP Action Sheets

The Action Sheets have been updated from the NVAP v2 to reflect the move towards identifying the impact of forces fully embedding the actions and the work being undertaken by the VKPP to develop Action Impact Toolkits.

The Action Impact Toolkits are evidence-based frameworks which present a number of activities and outputs the force could put in place in order to achieve the action, the related impacts these would have and suggested ways in which these can be measured.

Where an Action Impact Toolkit has been developed for an action, the key elements from these have been included in the Action Sheet. Where one is still to be developed, the Action Sheet has "Interim" at the top. This means that the elements described below may change following further evidence gathering and research. Action Sheets will be updated as the Toolkits are developed and published.

The Action Sheets now include the following elements:

Organisational Impact: The long-term impact that embedding the action would have on the force itself

External Impact: The long-term impact that embedding the action would have on the individuals, community and public served by the force

For each objective within the action:

What do we mean? A clarification of the objective itself

What are forces doing? A summary from the NVAP benchmarking process of what forces are currently doing against that objective

How do we know? Interim measures have been identified from the HMICFRS PEEL assessment framework (2023-25) that will help forces assess progress

In addition, where available, there will be links to:

Evidence

Action Impact Toolkit (where available)

Key Information/Documents

Ensure that recognising and responding to vulnerability is everyone's business, especially at first point of contact

ORGANISATIONAL IMPACT

A force that is confident in its ability to recognise and assess vulnerability at the earliest opportunity and responds appropriately reducing the risk to the individual, community and public.

EXTERNAL IMPACT:

Victims and their families are confident that vulnerability is recognised at first point of contact and responded to empathetically using a trauma informed approach.

Objective 1: To identify vulnerable people, communities (including victims and perpetrators) and related threat, risk and harm at an early stage	Objective 2: To ensure officers/staff are equipped to manage risk and assess needs, as well as support and safeguard those requiring it	Objective 3: To embed and employ a trauma informed approach
What do we mean? At an operational level, officers/staff are able to identify vulnerable individuals at an early stage, thereby reducing the risk of harm. What are forces doing? Many forces use tools to identify and respond to vulnerability and are developing apps to analyse and visualise the data in order to identify 'harm spots' and vulnerable people. A number of forces have created specific roles to assist in identifying and responding to vulnerability, for example Problem Solving Co-ordinators. Some forces hold multi-agency meetings to review incidents/identify people at risk of vulnerability and assess what further action may be needed.	What do we mean? Officers/staff are able to identify, assess and manage risk, supporting and safeguarding individuals where needed. What are forces doing? Many forces use apps, data analytics and assessment tools to identify and manage risk. An example is Call Assist, an automated system which identifies the previous history of callers and uses a vulnerability assessment framework. Forces have a variety of training packages from a 6 week intensification program, to officers cascading expertise to other officers. Some forces have evaluations of their practices e.g. mystery shopper deployments and force control room call reviews. Several forces have implemented additional measures e.g. a separate booking in desk for people experiencing vulnerability, the Safe Space Scheme and the vulnerable suspect pilot.	What do we mean? The force has a well-defined trauma informed approach which is embedded within their response to vulnerability. What are forces doing? Forces have started rolling out multi-agency Trauma Informed training to staff and officers. This develops knowledge of Adverse Childhood Experiences and how to recognise trauma.
How do we know? Related PEEL Measures 1.1 The force manages incoming calls, assesses risk and prioritises its response well. 1.2 The force deploys its resources to respond to victims and incidents in an appropriate manner. 2.1 The workforce interacts with the public fairly and respectfully. 4.1 The force has effective oversight of its response to public contact and understands risk effectively at first point of contact. 4.2 The force provides an appropriate response to incidents, including those involving vulnerable people.

Acknowledging that mental health (MH) can impact across all forms of vulnerability. Forces consider any links to MH as part of their vulnerability assessment, differentiating from other vulnerabilities where possible and ensuring individuals receive appropriate signposting, guidance and care.

ORGANISATIONAL IMPACT

Forces understand their mental health related demand and have developed pathways with partners resulting in greater confidence and capacity within the workforce to deliver an appropriate response to individuals experiencing mental ill health, particularly where this increases their level of vulnerability.

EXTERNAL IMPACT:

Victims, vulnerable individuals, and offenders are confident that their mental health needs are recognised and receive an appropriate joined up response with other relevant services such as health increasing trust and legitimacy.

Objective 1: To understand the mental-health related demand in relation to vulnerability to inform strategic and operational planning	Objective 2: To work with partners, especially those in health, to provide a combined safeguarding response to individuals experiencing mental health crisis and vulnerability related harm	Objective 3: To ensure that all victims and suspects are assessed for mental health and vulnerability and that the most appropriate criminal justice pathways are followed, signposting to services where required

Ensure all staff know where and how to access service provision for all strands of vulnerability, especially at the local neighbourhood level

ORGANISATIONAL IMPACT:

The force appropriately signposts to services thereby supporting effective long term solutions and positive outcomes for individuals and communities, strengthening relationships with services enabling better information sharing.

EXTERNAL IMPACT:

Individuals experiencing vulnerability are signposted to the most appropriate services in order to receive the support they need.

Objective 1: To improve awareness amongst police officers, staff and volunteers as to what service provision exists and what it does in order that they can advise/signpost people accordingly	Objective 2: For staff and officers to develop good working relationships with services and community groups, developing a sound knowledge of the services provided to enable a good information exchange both ways

In response to identified risk, ensure staff understand and utilise appropriate referral pathways including how to access partner provisions and are empowered to challenge or escalate decisions

ORGANISATIONAL IMPACT:

The force appropriately uses referral pathways and is confident in challenging decisions, ensuring the best outcome is reached for that child/adult at risk, thereby reducing the demand on policing.

EXTERNAL IMPACT:

Victims and those with vulnerability-related risk feel confident that the police will refer them to the appropriate agency and help ensure that the best outcome will be achieved, safeguarding children and adults at risk.

Objective 1: To ensure appropriate action is taken and that the right referral is made	Objective 2: To monitor if there is a satisfactory response to the referral, both for adults and children	Objective 3: To understand and feel empowered to use escalation policies	Objective 4: To ensure that you are satisfied with the outcome to your referral
What do we mean? That suitable action is taken and that the most appropriate referral is made. What are forces doing? Forces reported developing training and CPD packages around referral processes. Other forces reported having developed victim referral pathways which help identify the most appropriate referral for the victim. Several forces reported auditing or dip sampling referrals to ensure they are appropriate.	What do we mean? Outcomes from referrals are monitored to ensure the response is satisfactory. What are forces doing? Several forces reported having systems in place to monitor referrals. These include having daily meetings, a specific group to monitor referrals, using management information and having a central referral unit.	What do we mean? Escalation policies are clear and officers/staff feel able and supported to apply them. What are forces doing? Forces are working at both a strategic and individual level to ensure staff feel empowered to escalate challenges on decisions. In some forces specific strategic groups have been set up to facilitate and monitor professional challenge whilst others use existing governance structures to do this. ### To ensure that strategies and force management statements cover all strands of vulnerability

ORGANISATIONAL IMPACT:

An effective and efficient force that allocates appropriate resource to tackle and reduce vulnerability related risk.

EXTERNAL IMPACT:

Victims, communities and the public are confident that the force is tackling priority issues related to vulnerability.

Objective 1: To identify vulnerable people and related threat, risk and harm at an early stage	Objective 2: To ensure, at a strategic level, that key threats are identified and (where possible) activity planned for and delivered to reduce such threats	Objective 3: To have cognisance of and raise awareness of the identified regional and national threats and cross-cutting themes	Objective 4: To develop tools to understand community profiles better in alignment to vulnerability groups
What do we mean? Strategic planning is proactive in relation to vulnerability and, in conjunction with Analytical Capability (Action 2.3.3), seeks to identify vulnerable people at the earliest opportunity. What are forces doing? A number of different approaches are being used by forces such as the development of offender dashboards and analysis profiling of perpetrators to understand risk. Other activity includes proactively monitoring protection notices, the recruitment of community intelligence officers to enable a more targeted approach, and having a multi-agency process to look at vulnerable individuals who may not meet statutory thresholds but may still require support.	What do we mean? That strategic planning includes how vulnerability related key threats are being addressed. What are forces doing? Forces reported having vulnerability specific strategies in place guided by the NVAP and covering all vulnerability strands. In addition, forces have created vulnerability specific roles with the aim that these roles will also develop, at a strategic level, strong links with partners.	What do we mean? Strategic planning identifies the wider issues, threats and cross cutting themes affecting vulnerability. What are forces doing? Forces have worked with the Department for Education in researching the social workers role in identifying and managing radicalisation concerns in children leading to a report with recommendations to improve practice. In other forces, problem profiles have been created and aligned with Serious Organised Crime dashboards and have the strategic response co-ordinated by a multi-agency group.	What do we mean? In conjunction with Analytical Capability (Action 2.3.3) develop analytical tools to understand vulnerable groups and communities. What are forces doing? Some forces have developed bespoke dashboards using multi-agency data to develop profiles of the community in relation to different vulnerability strands. In other forces, ward community profiles have been developed for all neighbourhood officers to access. The public health approach has also been used to identify inequalities in populations that increase vulnerability and allow serious organised crime to embed.
How do we know? Related PEEL Measures 3.1 At its core function, the force prioritises the prevention and deterrence of crime, ASB, harm and vulnerability. 3.2 The force uses partnership-orientated evidence-based problem-solving to reduce and prevent long-term crime, ASB, harm and vulnerability. 4.2 The force provides an appropriate response to incidents, including those involving vulnerable people. 6.1 The force understands and effectively addresses the vulnerabilities it identifies. 6.2 The force provides good-quality safeguarding and support for all vulnerable people.

Data collected in support of local responses to vulnerability is of high quality, supported by policy, training and accountability

ORGANISATIONAL IMPACT:

A comprehensive data plan will enable the force to use analytical products to identify key threats and inform future planning at a strategic level

EXTERNAL IMPACT:

Communities and individuals are kept safer as resources are allocated more appropriately, improving the effectiveness of investigations and operations.

Objective 1: To have a comprehensive data collection plan which must include multi-agency data that supports the identification of our most vulnerable with a complete view of the risks inherent	Objective 2: To ensure that data collected, either through human intelligence or other systems, is assessed for quality and drives intelligence uplift and tasking processes	Objective 3: To use the data to support the force management statement	Objective 4: To understand the scale and nature of the collective threat through working with our partners
What do we mean? The forces' data collection plan includes collecting data from partners and other agencies to provide a holistic picture of risk at an individual and force level. What are forces doing? A number of forces either had or were developing databases which would include data from partners and other agencies. Vulnerability trackers are also used by forces. These use a range of partner data and enables the force to get a fuller picture of the person and their risk.	What do we mean? Data quality should be assessed to ensure it is fit for purpose which will help improve intelligence and tasking. What are forces doing? Forces reported improving data quality through a mixture of methods such as using automated processes, officer/staff training or having an intelligence grading system. Several forces have signed up to the National Data Quality Improvement Service which, although focused on knife crime, will have a positive impact within vulnerability.	What do we mean? The data collected is used to inform the force management statement (FMS) in terms of demand and vulnerability related risk. What are forces doing? There was not much reported in regard to this objective however some areas are combining the FMS with the Strategic Assessment to provide a richer picture of threats whilst others are examining all vulnerability strands within the FMS.	What do we mean? To work with partners in collecting and assessing data in order to understand the wider picture of vulnerability related risk. What are forces doing? A number of forces reported having multi-agency vulnerability trackers which were used across agencies to steer action. Profiles on particular vulnerabilities such as exploitation have been developed using partner data and have led to the development of a strategic multi-agency action plan. Other forces discussed how they had online reporting portals that could be used by partners and the public to share intelligence.

Develop analytical capability and capacity to identify high risk areas of vulnerability in order to target intervention/prevention activity, including identification of emerging threats such as cyber, elder abuse, modern day slavery, transitional safeguarding and vulnerability to radicalisation

ORGANISATIONAL IMPACT:

Force priorities are set and resources allocated based on a comprehensive and reliable understanding of the threat picture, providing greater insight through analytical products to investigators and operational teams

EXTERNAL IMPACT:

Communities and individuals are kept safer as resources are allocated more appropriately on the basis of greatest need, improving the effectiveness of investigations and operations.

Objective 1: To enable early intervention before criminality occurs	Objective 2: Recognition that vulnerability to becoming involved in crime or a victim of crime can increase due to social determinants such as association, geography, school, family etc	Objective 3: To enable agencies working in partnership to target local contexts and problems effectively and monitor shifting patterns e.g. criminal exploitation	Objective 4: To predict future risk and therefore enable a multi-agency approach to early intervention and prevention and where appropriate diversion and exit strategies for offenders
What do we mean? Analytical products are able to identify areas of risk that inform and enable early interventions with the aim of preventing criminality. What are forces doing? Forces use IT solutions (such as Qlik sense), dashboards and vulnerability trackers to provide up to date information. These often include multi-agency data and can cover different vulnerability strands helping forces to identify, prioritise and co-ordinate activity.	What do we mean? Ensure that analysis of vulnerability considers contextual elements such as geography, school, social groups etc. What are forces doing? Forces have developed a variety of high level products such as needs assessments, problem profiles and databases that use holistic data including information related to schools, health, employment, attainment, poverty and deprivation. In addition, non-police information can be gained from links with specific locations, for example from officers based in schools.	What do we mean? Through working with partners, analytical products and approaches are enhanced enabling the effective monitoring and understanding of local issues. What are forces doing? Forces have created specific roles to work across agencies and/or collate multi-agency data to identify patterns and trends, providing holistic analysis and identifying process improvements. Some forces train analysts to ensure understanding of vulnerability and contextual safeguarding are within their core skills. Forces are developing databases that contain multi-agency data that can be used for analysis and the production of analytical products such as strategic assessments, problem profiles. Forces are working in a multi-agency capacity to address particular issues/vulnerabilities for example suicide prevention, exploitation.	What do we mean? Forces use analytical capability to develop tools that help identify risk areas and inform multi-agency prevention and intervention activities. What are forces doing? A number of forces use analytical tools such as algorithms or risk assessment tools to identify the perpetrators that posed the greatest risk, enabling a multi-agency response through activities such as diversion or disruption work. Most commonly mentioned was the use of Recency, Frequency and Gravity (RFG) tools, particularly in relation to domestic abuse perpetrators. In other areas, analytical products such as strategic assessments and reports have been used to identify future risk areas.
How do we know? ### Develop clear processes to ensure that 'the voices of vulnerable victims and witnesses' are heard

ORGANISATIONAL IMPACT:

A force that consistently meets the need of the victim in line with the Victim's Code of Practice, victim feedback is actively sought, and effective services are delivered, increasing police officer/staff confidence and job satisfaction.

EXTERNAL IMPACT:

Vulnerable victims feel heard and supported and able to access appropriate service provision which are commissioned in line with the needs of victims.

Objective 1: To ensure that 'the voices of vulnerable victims and witnesses' are heard relating to service provision and victim/witness feedback	Objective 2: To understand if existing practice is meeting the need of the victim/witness and in line with the Victims' Code of Practice	Objective 3: To seek feedback and use the voice of the victim to shape and plan future service design
What do we mean? The opinions, thoughts and experiences of vulnerable victims and witnesses are taken into account when identifying what service provision may be required and to ensure procedural justice. What are forces doing? Forces reported having specialist roles such as Victim Liaison officers who liaise between the victim and investigation. Some areas have victim support hubs to provide bespoke engagement and signposting. In addition, forces are undertaking training in areas such as trauma informed practice and the importance of language and some have developed guidance and tools to help capture the voice of the victim.	What do we mean? To assess and monitor current practice against the Victim's Code of Practice. What are forces doing? Forces referenced using scrutiny panels or representatives from other forces or partner agencies to ensure practice is meeting the Victim's Code of Practice along with the use of audits and dip sampling. In some areas there are changes being made to the IT system to include advice pop-up boxes on victim-care logs.	What do we mean? Views of service users are sought, considered and used in the decision-making around future systems and service provision. What are forces doing? Forces have reported creating engagement groups with either victims or victim representative groups. These groups are being used to capture the victim's voice in shaping services and build better relationships with different cohorts of individuals. For example, using the 'lived experience' of individuals to develop a new Victim and Witness Care Unit. In addition, some forces have developed victim satisfaction surveys to help gain feedback.
How do we know? ### Develop competent front line police and staff responders who use professional curiosity to ensure that the early investigation is maximised to gather best evidence

ORGANISATIONAL IMPACT:

A skilled, motivated workforce who are equipped to look beyond the obvious to gather quality evidence and are clear on processes supported by well-defined policy and, where it is the most appropriate option, result in more cases leading to prosecution.

EXTERNAL IMPACT:

Victims are confident that police have collected the best evidence and that their case is being handled appropriately and sensitively, increasing reporting and achieving the best outcomes for children and adults at risk.

Objective 1: To ensure call handlers have an investigative mindset, ask open questions and try to understand what is happening and why.	Objective 2: To ensure good quality information is recorded which could be used in evidence-led prosecutions	Objective 3: To ensure the response or neighbourhood officer takes a similarly inquisitive approach in their interactions, likely to be recorded on Body Worn Video. All vulnerable victims and witnesses, especially children, must be given the time and safe space to feel able to give their account using trusted interpreters/communication aids where appropriate to support them.	Objective 4: To ensure that crimes are allocated to those investigators with the most appropriate skills	Objective 5: To ensure supervisors have the skills to review and manage investigations competently, ensuring due consideration is given to the appropriateness of prosecution. Where there are issues of exploitation/vulnerability (e.g. Modern Day Slavery, County Lines and Vulnerability to Radicalisation) it may not always be appropriate to prosecute
What do we mean? Call handlers feel able to, and do, display professional curiosity. What are forces doing? In addition to training and reviewing calls, forces reported providing call handlers with a set script or pop-up questions and guidance dependent on the crime/incident. In addition, some forces reported that call handlers complete the intelligence checks and the initial assessment of needs which provides a greater understanding of the call.	What do we mean? The quality of information recorded is monitored to ensure it is useable for prosecution. What are forces doing? In addition to auditing investigations and cases, forces also reported having systems in place to ensure the investigations are reviewed regularly and delivering training to improve the practice of front-line officers.	What do we mean? Officers display professional curiosity when attending an incident, recording this on BWV where appropriate. They should also ensure that victims/witnesses are provided with a safe space and appropriate tools (e.g. interpreter, communication aids) to enable them to feel safe in giving their account. What are forces doing? Initiatives and/or training have been rolled out in some forces to improve officer's ability to engage with young people. In addition some forces have developed specialist roles to support children from diverse communities to engage confidently with the police. Templates have also been developed for officers to use to ensure key areas are not missed. In some forces, facilities have been addressed to help with engagement such as providing a calm environment in which children and young people can give evidence.	What do we mean? Crimes are investigated by those who have the appropriate skills and understanding of the vulnerabilities present. What are forces doing? Forces are delivering training in this area with some developing accreditation programmes such as 'Passports' to ensure officers at the different ranks have the correct training and skills.	What do we mean? In conjunction with the Voice of the Victim (Action 2.4.1), supervisors effectively manage and review investigations and understand where prosecution may not be the most appropriate option. What are forces doing? Forces reported linking in with Youth Offending or Justice teams when considering the most appropriate outcome and a number of forces discussed the use of diversionary schemes and out of court disposals where appropriate. Forces also reported using reviews and audits to ensure that working practices in relation to vulnerability are understood and that opportunities for evidence-led prosecutions have not been missed.

Develop and utilise in more effective ways early evidence gathering techniques and the use of 'evidence-led' prosecutions in all appropriate cases (wider than domestic abuse & child abuse)

ORGANISATIONAL IMPACT:

A highly-skilled and confident force who ensure that where vulnerability may prevent a victim from supporting an investigation, evidence is still gathered that leads to efficient investigations, positive outcomes and successful prosecutions where appropriate.

EXTERNAL IMPACT:

Victims feel safe and confident in the police's response to their needs from the start and throughout the investigation, ensuring that where prosecution is the most appropriate option, vulnerability is not a barrier to achieving justice.

Objective 1: Ensure officers/staff are aware of the principles of evidence-led prosecution and that it should be considered for a range of crimes other than DA, including Modern Day Slavery, Honour Based Violence, Elder Abuse and Child Sexual Abuse and/or Criminal Exploitation	Objective 2: To ensure first responders are trained, equipped and able to collect evidence options other than victim testimony, particularly where the victim is vulnerable	Objective 3: Where it is thought that the case may become an evidence-led prosecution, to ensure that officers/staff consult with the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) at the earliest opportunity for investigative advice
What do we mean? Investigating officers/staff are trained in evidence-led prosecutions (ELP) and are able to apply the principles to vulnerability-related crimes other than domestic abuse (DA). What are forces doing? Many forces have developed and delivered training packages around ELP although currently there is a strong focus on DA. Following consultation with officers/staff forces are developing practical tools for frontline officers to improve their response and understanding to ELP.	What do we mean? First responders know how to, and do, gather the evidence required for an ELP even if this approach has not been decided on at that point. What are forces doing? Along with training, forces have also been pro-active in providing learning around ELP, Hearsay statements and Body Worn Video including providing ELP Prosecution aide memoirs for first responders to use while they are at the scene.	What do we mean? To ensure the best outcome for a case, officers/staff need to consult with the CPS at the earliest opportunity to ensure they are collecting the evidence needed to proceed. What are forces doing? Some forces have worked jointly with the CPS to improve ELP advice by reviewing how officers access advice, providing training, developing an ELP Charging Advice Template or working with a dedicated CPS lawyer around ELP.

To optimise governance arrangements regarding vulnerability (in-house and multi-agency) to ensure synergy regarding understanding of threat, barriers, good practice, gaps and related forward work plans

ORGANISATIONAL IMPACT:

A robust governance structure that ensures the best response to managing risk and vulnerabilities through providing accountability, leadership, learning and direction.

EXTERNAL IMPACT:

Victims, communities, the public and partners are confident of a consistent and joined up multi-agency response that seeks to find the best outcome for that child/adult at risk leading to reduced repeat victims of abuse and early identification of risk.

Objective 1: To ensure the implementation, in England, of the reforms to Multi Agency Safeguarding Children Partnerships from Local Safeguarding Children's Boards continue to be incorporated into the Forces' systematic governance arrangements	Objective 2: To ensure there is effective interoperability between Local Safeguarding Children Partnerships, Safeguarding Adults Boards and Community Safety Partnerships	Objective 3: To develop robust audit, peer review and independent scrutiny both within force and at a multi-agency level	Objective 4: To ensure integration of the learning and recommendations from national briefings and local and national learning reviews	Objective 5: To ensure the delegation of responsibility as the safeguarding partner from Chief Officer to another appropriate person in the force is subject to monitoring, evaluation and review
What do we mean? To ensure local arrangements for Multi Agency Safeguarding Children Partnerships are designed to meet the enhanced responsibilities of Chief Officers in terms of leadership, accountability and delegation and that Policing have in place their own systematic governance arrangements to support this. What are forces doing? Across the English Police Forces the senior leadership and governance arrangements vary considerably as the local areas move from implementation to embedding their new responsibilities. Some Police forces have engaged executive leads across all three safeguarding partner agencies and across multiple Local Authority footprints in executive arrangements that are systematic and visible within their structures.	What do we mean? Partnerships should be aligned and work together to safeguard children and adults at risk. What are forces doing? Some forces reported having a combined board structure which joins the statutory partnerships into one arrangement. In some areas non-statutory strategic meetings are held between the chairs of the statutory partnerships to ensure interoperability and promote joint working.	What do we mean? To ensure that there is clear oversight and accountability at both the force and multi-agency levels. What are forces doing? Forces reported having robust audit schedules across safeguarding areas. A number of forces reported conducting multi-agency reviews or commissioning peer reviews from partner agencies. Scrutiny was reported to be carried out by a mixture of independent scrutineers, multi-agency scrutiny panels, and critical friends such as the Crown Prosecution Service. In some areas Safeguarding Central Governance Units which are independent from operational delivery have been created to conduct reviews and audits.	What do we mean? The combined learning and recommendations from reviews are included in the development of safeguarding practices within force and partnerships. What are forces doing? Forces reported developing either learning and development groups that would collate and disseminate learning and recommendations, or creating specific functions within force such as a Statutory Reviews and Learning Officer. Forces reported sharing learning and recommendations through multi-agency newsletters or reflective learning groups for different vulnerability strands.	What do we mean? That the Chief Officer has an overview of the delegated role. What are forces doing? Forces reported ensuring the delegation of responsibility is monitored through one-to-ones or vulnerability boards.

Instil a supervisory approach at all levels throughout the organisation that encourages debriefing/review and a learning culture with a mindset of 'What did we do well?'

ORGANISATIONAL IMPACT:

A force that promotes a culture of continuous improvement at all levels with officers/staff feeling empowered to challenge inappropriate behaviour and poor decision making leading to a reduction in negative outcomes and an increase in wellbeing.

EXTERNAL IMPACT:

Lessons are learned from previous cases and the same mistakes are not made repeatedly, which instils faith and confidence in the police.

Objective 1: To ensure police officers/staff feel confident in the level of support they receive, have the ability to challenge and know who to go to if there is a problem

What do we mean?

The culture of the force is one where officers/staff receive consistent, high-quality supervision and feel supported and empowered in challenging inappropriate behaviour or poor decision-making around vulnerability.

What are forces doing?

Forces reported supporting staff through a number of different methods such as debriefs, clinical supervisions, mandatory 24 hours rest after deployment to a child death, use of an 'Individual Adjustment Passport' and peer support through Wellbeing Allies Scheme. Forces also highlight good practice through quality of service reports and case studies.

Several forces have implemented programs such as Leading with CARE, Learning Circles/Reflective Practice Panels, the Culture Project, which reviews leadership and supervisory behaviour, and other leadership development programmes to improve the learning culture and to assist current and aspiring supervisors.

Staff surveys are used to measure confidence in the support provided and to inform wellbeing activity/policy. Forces use responses to staff consultations and feedback groups to feed into local and force wellbeing boards.

Forces provide an ability to challenge through methods such as suggestion boxes, an idea drop system, and apps. Others have local boards and group who act as a sounding board for the Command Team and critical friends to the Senior Management Teams.

ORGANISATIONAL IMPACT:

A supported and resilient workforce who can recognise and manage the effects of exposure to aspects of criminality/vulnerability (e.g. compassion fatigue, moral injury and vicarious trauma) leading to a healthier workforce, reduced sickness levels and increased retention.

EXTERNAL IMPACT:

Victims, communities and the public experience an appropriate level of response from police and are always treated with dignity and respect leading to improved relationships and better engagement.

To ensure recruitment processes show/test understanding of vulnerability for potential new employees entering the service and throughout their career

ORGANISATIONAL IMPACT:

A motivated workforce who have aligned values and integrity and understand their role in relation to vulnerability leading to greater retention and job satisfaction throughout their career.

EXTERNAL IMPACT:

A workforce with enhanced motivation to recognise and respond to individuals experiencing vulnerability with compassion, respect and dignity.

Objective 1: To have a workforce that understands, and is motivated to understand, the importance and complex nature of vulnerability from the moment they join the service and the role they perform within the service to deliver	Objective 2: To ensure that officers and staff continue to have aligned values in relation to vulnerability

To work with communities to build confidence, improve understanding and increase reporting especially with groups affected by structural inequalities

ORGANISATIONAL IMPACT:

A force that is recognised as procedurally just (i.e., fair, trustworthy and respectful) by the communities that officers/staff serve and belong to, increasing partnership working, job satisfaction and intelligence.

EXTERNAL IMPACT:

Communities feel heard and listened to with individual needs respected and responded to, removing barriers to reporting and increasing the communities confidence in the response they will receive from the force.

Objective 1: To work with communities, community groups and in collaboration with Police and Crime Commissioners (PCC) to increase reporting of those groups that are under-reporting	Objective 2: To have recognition of the risk that a vulnerable person, groups affected by structural inequalities or even a community might experience when reporting and what support mechanisms are in place	Objective 3: To increase ease of access, third sector reporting and gateways to services	Objective 4: To ensure staff recognise that a community as a whole, or sections of it, can be vulnerable

Evidence Overview

Action 2.1.1 Recognition and Response

Return to Action Sheet

Recognising and responding to vulnerability is everyone's business, including front line police officers and staff who often come into contact with vulnerable people, either in crisis or have suffered or at risk of harm. First responders are in a position to identify risk at an early stage and provide the opportunity for protection, however this requires the ability to recognise vulnerabilities and risks of harm, displaying professional curiosity and knowing the most appropriate action to take.

Training in the different strands of vulnerability and referral mechanisms is needed for frontline staff to ensure the vulnerable person receives the appropriate support, such as risk management plans for older victims, or to provide confidence in identifying vulnerabilities such as modern slavery, human trafficking and vulnerability to radicalisation.

Although risk assessment tools can be used to help frontline staff identify vulnerability, these need to be completed accurately and consistently and requires the officer/staff to have good communication skills to elicit the information and a good understanding of vulnerability. This is needed for both victim and offender, especially where the offender is a child, as they are entitled to the same safeguards as other children. A possible way of dealing with identified vulnerability, particularly with young perpetrators is to take a trauma informed approach to assessing risk, such as considering adverse childhood experiences.

Action 2.1.2 Mental Health

Action 2.1.3 Access to Services

Return to Action Sheet

Pivotal to the effectiveness of safeguarding approaches is a knowledge of service provision within the area, and an understanding of what these services can do to assist vulnerable people. For example, police may advise or signpost an individual to Independent Domestic Violence Advisors or Independent Sexual Violence Advisors who are able to provide targeted professional support to victims or those at risk of abuse.

There are also a variety of third sector support agencies to which the police can consider referring vulnerable individuals, including Victim Support and community-based outreach services. Neighbourhood Policing Teams are important in identifying what service provision is available, and making initial contact with the services to ensure an effective route of communication. Working with third sector partners has a range of benefits, including the impact of their strong presence within communities, and the wealth of specific knowledge and expertise held within such services.

The VKPP briefing on Safeguarding Adult Reviews found cases where a lack of knowledge and understanding of local service provision contributed to missed opportunities to refer vulnerable individuals for support which may have helped reduce the risk that they faced. Partner and third sector agencies provide services and support which the police cannot, therefore it is essential that forces understand the options available for vulnerable people in their area, and officers, staff and volunteers are confident in signposting vulnerable people to the relevant support required.

Action 2.2.1 Appropriate Action

Return to Action Sheet

A referral is the passing on of information between agencies, or internally, if someone believes a child or vulnerable adult may be suffering or is at risk of suffering significant harm. Often information sharing problems can occur from the absence of effective systems for sharing information, referrals lacking relevant details or officers not making a referral even when there are concerns. In some cases, more so with vulnerable adults, issues are caused by a lack of knowledge of the relevant referral services and processes, a lack of feedback on previous referrals deterring officers from submitting further referrals, or relying on partners to share information with relevant agencies instead of sharing it themselves. In addition, there can be insufficient follow-up. For example, not always finding out what action was previously undertaken with repeat referrals or recording the outcome of the referral.

Appropriate referrals enable children or vulnerable adults to receive the right service at the right time. Therefore, arrangements should be in place setting out the processes for sharing information including clear escalation policies for staff to follow when they feel that safeguarding concerns are not being addressed within their organisation or by other agencies. Employers are also responsible for creating an environment where staff feel able to raise concerns and feel supported in their safeguarding role. Partnership working should be collaborative and receptive to 'professional challenge'. Although challenging other professionals can be difficult, it is important not to assume the lead agency has made the best decision.

Action 2.3.1 Tasking and Review Process

Return to Action Sheet

The annual Force Management Statement (FMS) sets out expected demand, an essential process in ensuring the force is effective in meeting the demand. To support the delivery of the FMS, local profiles should be produced and used to develop a common understanding among local partners of the threats, vulnerabilities and risks providing information on which to base the local response and local action plans.

Strategic Tasking groups enable senior managers to agree strategic direction and align resources to priorities with contributions from partner agencies and community safety partnerships, whilst Tactical Tasking is undertaken by operational police managers ensuring that decisions about priorities and resources are based on the best available threat assessments. It is therefore essential that these tasking forums consider all strands of vulnerability in their planning and decision-making. Partner agencies are an important part of this process as multi-agency working provides improved information sharing, joint decision-making and co-ordination enabling the early and effective identification of risk to vulnerable people.

There are also several national strategic tasking groups around vulnerability, for example the NCA chairs strategic groups on child sexual exploitation and abuse, modern slavery and human trafficking, and organised immigration crime. These vulnerability strands often cross borders, therefore having cognisance of regional and national strategies and tasking around these vulnerabilities will ensure a joined-up approach to tackling the issues.

Action 2.3.2 Data Collection

Return to Action Sheet

The Force Management Statement (FMS) is an annual self-assessment provided to HMICFRS setting out expected demand and how the force will change and improve its workforce and other assets to cope with that demand. This is important as understanding and planning resources to meet that demand is central to a force's efficiency.

As well as providing information on vulnerability in the initial response demand section, there is also a specific section on protecting vulnerable people (PVP) which covers every type of PVP demand and how your force identifies and safeguards vulnerable people. Assumptions around future demand linked to vulnerability need to be based on sound evidence and analysis. HMICFRS has reported that understanding of hidden demand has improved particularly in regards to modern slavery, county lines and cuckooing.

However, data needs to be assessed for quality as this can lead not only to misunderstanding demand but also officers being unable to assess the effectiveness of their practice. The National Intelligence Model provides a framework for the analysis and intelligence of information.

Action 2.3.3 Analytical Capability

Return to Action Sheet

The Strategic Policing Requirement (SPR) sets out that PCCs and Chief Constables must consider the areas of threat set out in the SPR which include, serious and organised crime, including cyber, trafficking and child sexual abuse. They should understand their roles in preparing for and tackling shared threats, risks and harm; agree, and have the capacity to meet that expectation.

Analytical capability and capacity is essential to be able to identify threats and high risk areas of vulnerability, target early interventions and predict future risk. In 2015, the HMIC found that management information in forces was weak and they were ill-informed as to how well they were meeting the need of children. Improving the quality of information helps with service planning and understanding whether forces are meeting needs of communities. More recently HMICFRS have identified a lack of capacity in neighbourhood policing to analyse and use intelligence which can reduce how effective neighbourhood policing is at keeping people safe.

To understand fully and deal with the risks present it is important for forces to work in partnership with other agencies. For example, effective partnerships are needed to co-ordinate activity and build intelligence to tackle issues such as modern slavery, human trafficking and vulnerability to radicalisation, and multi-agency safeguarding hubs may provide more timely, accurate and co-ordinated intelligence leading to better informed safeguarding decisions.

Action 2.4.1 Voice of the Victim

Return to Action Sheet

Working Together to Safeguard Children promotes a child-centred approach to safeguarding where the needs of the child are put first, including speaking and listening to the child. This is also set out in legislation such as Article 12 of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child and Section 11 of the Children Act 2004.

Children have the right to the full protection offered by criminal law and safeguarding risks should be considered whether the child is a victim, witness, or an offender with due regard given to their safety and welfare at all times.

APP guidance states that in relation to concern for a child the initiating officer must "communicate with the child and keep them informed, taking into account the child's wishes as part of the decision-making process and, whenever possible, acting on them."

This also applies to adults with The Code of Practice for victims of crime requiring all victims to be treated in a respectful, sensitive and professional manner and that provision of information on key stages and support services available can help with victim engagement. The 2014 Care Act also states that the starting assumption should be that the individual is best-placed to judge their wellbeing and therefore their views, wishes and feelings should be listened to, for example carrying-out person centred assessments which involve and support the person.

Action 2.4.2 Evidence and Investigation

Return to Action Sheet

All victims of crime have the right to expect that forces will allocate their crime to someone with the appropriate skills to investigate it. Most crimes reported to the police are not major incidents and usually the officer who first attends is the only resource that is required. The quality of the investigation, whether carried out in person or over the phone, is a significant factor in gathering material that leads to the detection of a crime. Positive action in the period immediately after the report of a crime minimises the amount of material that could be lost to the investigation, and maximises the chance of securing material which is admissible in court.

The CoP Perennial Challenges identified Evidence and Investigation as one of the reoccurring issues within policing. On the front line this appears as issues such as poor completion of case files, poor or missing witness care information, missed opportunities to find and collect important evidence particularly during the 'golden hour' and a lack of confidence in collecting and using evidence from social media, text messages and digital equipment.

The CoP has produced evidence and guidance on initial investigation including guidelines for first responders on how to elicit initial accounts and the use of Body Worn Video. The backdrop to this however is the need for frontline staff to display professional curiosity and be prepared to look beyond the obvious, asking questions that may glean evidence that can be used in a subsequent investigation.

Action 2.4.3 Evidence Led Prosecutions

Return to Action Sheet

Evidence-led prosecutions may be used in circumstances where the victim is unable to give evidence in court, for example due to a physical or mental condition, or the victim is in fear. This suggests that evidence-led prosecutions could be considered for offences where victims are vulnerable and may be unable/unwilling to give evidence. For example, in cases of honour based crime, crimes against older people, child sexual exploitation offences or cases of modern slavery and human trafficking where victims may not identify themselves as victims, may feel loyalty to offenders, or may be unable to support a prosecution.

In these circumstances police are advised to use other strategies rather than relying on victim testimony. Both the annual Modern Slavery report and guidance around child sexual exploitation recommend obtaining evidence from a wide range of sources and building an intelligence picture from information from partner agencies. Cases must pass the Full Code Test for the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) to proceed without the victim, meaning that other evidence such as a section 9 statement from the victim setting out their fears, evidence of injury, officer statements, body-worn video footage or third-party witness statements is essential.

Therefore to enable successful evidence-led prosecutions, evidence-building should be considered early on and police should work closely with the CPS.

Action 2.5.1 Governance

Return to Action Sheet

The Children and Social Work Act 2017 introduced changes to the safeguarding arrangements for children with the chief officer of police becoming a statutory safeguarding partner along with the local authority and the clinical commissioning group in the area with a responsibility to work together to identify and respond to the needs of the children in the area. Guidance around safeguarding responsibilities is published in Working Together to Safeguard Children.

In response to this the National Police Chiefs Council adopted the Voice of Policing statement where Chief Officers signed up to work alongside partners in the new safeguarding partnership arrangements in England and mobilise robust long term plans to reduce the prevalence and impact of adverse childhood experiences which can lead to contact with the police.

Currently the delegation of responsibility and associated governance structures is untested although Sir Alan Wood will be reviewing the progress of the implementation of the multi-agency child safeguarding partnerships.

Often the focus of learning from Serious Case Reviews (SCRs) is on other partner agencies, distilled learning specific to the police has been produced by VKPP and as part of a Triennial Analysis of SCRs funded by the Department for Education.

Action 2.5.2 Resilient Staff

Return to Action Sheet

Effective supervision can increase job satisfaction, identify training and professional development needs, leading to greater effectiveness, and enable staff to reflect on and develop their practice increasing their accountability.

Guidance from the Social Care Institute for Excellence highlights the impact that organisational culture can have on effective supervision, suggesting the importance of the police embedding a culture of learning within the organisation. Policing has seen a shift in approach, with forces becoming more able to adapt and confront new challenges, more readily learning from failings and implementing change.

However, there is inconsistency in the national delivery of leadership and supervision to front line staff. As such the College of Policing undertook a call for practice in September 2019, and aim to develop guidelines to support effective supervision based on the findings. To ensure effective supervision staff undertaking supervisory roles must have the training and skills for the role, and be supported in their own development.

Pressures of operational work however, can sometimes mean that supervisory practices such as debriefing can be overlooked and opportunities to identify good practice and areas for development are missed. Such missed opportunities highlight the need to develop a practice culture which places significant importance on supervision and learning.

Action 2.7.1 Working with Communities

Return to Action Sheet

Victimisation can often be traumatic and for some people and communities, either due to culture, experience or perception, reporting to the police may be difficult. The police are responsible for working with communities to ensure that barriers to reporting are minimised, and that communities are empowered to report and engage with police. This is particularly important for groups affected by structural inequalities who can be disproportionately affected by barriers to reporting. Effectively engaging communities in policing can increase the degree of trust and the perception of police legitimacy, whilst also impacting crime levels and impressions of disorder.

Neighbourhood Policing Guidelines highlight how forces should be involved in a two-way dialogue with the public, in order to develop a better understanding of the needs, risks and threats of the community and provide an opportunity to help build confidence in the police.

Independent Advisory Groups (IAGs) and Counter Terrorism Advisory Groups (CTAGs) provide a platform for the police to engage with communities, enabling community members to challenge police approaches, and contribute to forward-thinking around increasing the ease of access to the police for the communities most affected by structural inequalities.

Police responsibility also covers appropriate support for victims and witnesses. The Victims' Code of Practice states that victims who are particularly vulnerable, intimidated or persistently targeted, are entitled to an enhanced service in terms of support.
